ARLINGTON BOAT CLUB

The house league team is everlastingly powling since a change was made in its make-up and marvelous results are being achieved, at least Old Dorchester thought so Wednesday evening. The visitors were handicapped by not having five men, but even then they never could have won the game. There was no end of fun for the on lookers and excitement was high as the home team piled up the scores. "Kid" Rankin was the center of attraction, and he was spurred on by the crowd of members who had assembled to witness the game, knowing he had rolled in previous matches 665, 603, 574 and 601 for threestring totals, clipped the season's record for the big league by rolling 677. This is 20 pins better than the amateur league mark set a few weeks ago by Tower of Commercial at the B. A. A. alleys. Besides this total Rankin also had a single of 279, in which he rolled nine straight strikes and then a one-pin spare in the 10th box. This Is the second highest string of the season, Armstrong of Dudley holding the record with 288, made early in the schedule: Two of Rankin's strings were clean, his only miss coming in the second box of the opening game, after which he rolled 28 perfect boxes, making 17 strikes and 12 spares. Arlington as a team made a remarkable showing in the third game, when a total of 1011 was scored, tying the record made by Charlestown on the Boat club alleys a while ags. Arlington had the recoed easily broken in the last frame, when with only one pin to go which was the only miss he had during the evening. This team string combined five clean frames for 18 strikes, 26 spares, three misses and three breaks. Rankin's strings follow:

In Arlington's third game the first three frames were bowled clean, then came a miss in the fourth by Marston, and then all went clean again until Marston made a break in the seventh. Whittemore's break in the eighth, a miss by Dodge and a break by Marston in the ninth and Whittemous's fatal miss in the 10th were the only other slip-ups. The scores at the end of the respective frames were 106, 215, 334, 440 Pictures, 558, 653, 840, 916, 1011. Besides Rankin's nine-strikes Dodge had a triple and Homer a double in the last box. The match was half an hour late in starting Old Dorchester waiting for Miller, the second man on the order. man on the team had over 500 and in the first two games averaged more pins per man than Arlington so that had Miller been present at least one game might have been won. Arlington had nearly 2800 for its total each man going over bonor figures Homer and Whittemore having 544 and 547 respectively. Old Dorchester had Gray at 554 and and ranked with the second highest single 213. Both teames rolled 10 clean frames but the only clean strings fell to the boat club Rankin having two, bunches were Rankin's nine, a quad by Gray, triples by Dodge and Marston, and doubles by Rankin 2, Dodge, Mars-

SAMUEL D. HICKS DEAD.

In the death of Samuel Dexter Hicks, who died in the Massachusetts General illness of a few days, Arlington loses one of its most prominent citizens.

Born in Fall River, Oct. 15, 1824, Mr. Hicks had passed his 76th birthday. Coming to Arlington in 1874, Mr. Hicks at once became identified with the interests and growth of the town. He was invariably one of the leading men in directors. whatever concerned the welfare of Arlington. He was ever ready to expend both time and money for her advancement. Had he been ambitious for public honors, there was no position that Arlington had to give which Mr. Hicks might not have had. He did at one time consent to become a candidate for the legislature when he was elected over Oliver Warner, for so many years secretary of state. As a business man, Mr. Hicks was a marked success. For more than a halfcentury he was well and favorably known among the business men of Boston. For some years past, S. Fred Hicks, his son, has been connected with him in the management of his large and growing trade as coppersmith. Mr. Hicks, by his genial nature, had drawn about him many friends. Easy of approach, he was a man whom all loved to meet. In his attractive home on Pleasant street, he was the soul of hospitality. Arlington will sincerely mourn his sudden death. It was only two weeks ago that he was Whittemore missed a one-pin spare, taken ill in his office on Bowker street, Boston, when he was immediately taken to the hospital, where it was reported that he was recovering, up to almost the hour of his death, so that his going came as a shock to all Arlington.

Interested in our public schools and churches, and indeed in all that was of material or immaterial worth to his adopted town, the deceased will be greatly missed and mourned. His wife and son, Mr. S. Fred Hicks, and his daughter, Mrs. F. H. Pettengill, survive

The funeral services were conducted at his late home, 128 Pleasant street, at noon yesterday, by the Rev. W. H. Ryder of Gloucester, formerly pastor of the Unitarian church in Arlington. There was also present a large delegation of the employees of the deceased. Interment was at Forest Hills

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH NOTES.

Mrs. Hardon of Cambridge is conducting a Bible class for women on the Thursdays of Lent, at 3.30 p. m. All ladies are cordially invited.

Services are held on Wednesday evenings during Lent at St. John's. The preacher next Wednesday evening is the Rev. R. H. Coe of Belmont.

Tomorrow's services at St. John's church, Academy street, are: At 10.30, morning prayer, holy communion and sermon; at 7.30, evening prayer.

The Lenten service for children is on Wednesday afternoons at 4. The rector is giving a series of addresses on "The church and its furniture." The subject next Wednesday is "The prayer-deskworship: prayer."

The Rev. John T. Magrath will give an address on temperance at the Parish house on Friday evening at 7.45. The Rev. James Yeames will preside. The meeting is one of a Lenten series held in various parishes, arranged by the Church Total Abstinence league. All are invited to attend.

"Forecastle yarns" is the title of the lecture to be given by Mr. Stanton H. King of the Sailor's haven, Charlestown, at St. John's Parish house, Maple street, on Tuesday evening first, at 8 o'clock. The lecture is under the auspices of the Young Men's society, and a King is an "old salt," and will give a lively and interesting talk.

The next regular meeting of the Arlington Woman's club will occur on ing. Thursday afternoon, Mar. 7, at 3 o'clock, in G. A. R. hall. Miss Ida F. Robbins will give a talk on "China."

Each member of the club may obtain one guest ticket for gentlemen's night for 25c, from the treasurer at the next meeting, Mar. 7, or after Mar. 18 at her home, 86 Pleasant street. If there are any tickets left on Mar. 26 members desiring extra ones may get them from Miss Hodgdon at the same price.

THE TABLET OF LIFE.

(Pilula At Longan Vitam.) The Scientific Discovery of the Age! The Magic Key to the Mystery of Life

The Magic Key to the Mystery of Life

From time immemorial it has been man'spre dominating ambition to prolong Life. But among the many brilliant minds who have devoted their lives to the fascinating subject it was left to the immortal Darwin to give to the world, in his great theory of Life, the fundamental principle upon which to build all further research in this direction. Following closely in his footsteps came Prof. Dr. Ludwig Buechner, a German scientist of international tenown, with his remarkable work entitled "Dzz Buch des Langen Lebens" (the book on Longevity). But alas, like Darwin, he too died ere he could reap the fruit of his wonderful doerine. Others, however, equally great took up the interrupted thread, with the result that two famous German scientists, after years of experiments and research, have at last discovered the secret of Longevity, in the shape of a remarkable Vegetable Compound, which, if property used, will positively prolong Life. This new remedy, appropriately named "Longavita" (meaning Long Life) has been subjected to the most rigid tests at all the leading clinics and hospitals throughout Europe with marvel as results. Appreciating the importance of this discovery, we have acquired, at enormous cost, the exclusive proprietary right to this train a practical, feasible form. It is the fountain of perpetual youth, which it prolongs far beyond its present limits, while retaining health in a perfectly normal state, "Longavity brightens the eye, stimulates mental activity, gives elasticity to the step, makes the face full, absorbs wrinkjes, cleanses the system, purificate skin, and is the only true Ponce de Longremedy for old and young of both sexes. ## TOWN MEETING.

On next Monday occurs the annual town meeting, when we all become sovereigns. On that day we call no man master-then one man is as good as another, whether he goes on foot or rides behind his dapple greys. The town meeting has about it all the fundamentals of a republican government. It was conceived in the Mayflower, and had its birth on New England soil. It has shaped and given character to all our political history. Indeed it is the kindergarten school of our republic. it is first and foremost a New England institution, extending its influence throughout every nook and corner of our American nation. It is the alphabet of our national liberty.

It is with the greatest satisfaction and pleasure that we recall those New Hampshire town meetings in the days of our earlier manhood. We can now hear the moderator declaring the vote cast for the several candidates for office. And those heated political discussions as to the merits of the opposing candidates-shall we ever forget them? We now break anew into laughter as we remember how at one time, when our home town had for many years given a republican majority it very unexpectedly at last gave a democratic majority, at which result the dominant party for so many years felt not a little ugly and tial to any enterprise in any department more; a hot-headed republican meeting a bright, good-natured democrat immediately after the vote was declared, said to him with a good deal of feeling, "Rum did it, rum did it," whereupon our democratic friend replied, "I know it," and then he added, "If our rum hadn't given out we would have bought up the whole republican party."

Our American congress never displayed in its best days keener wit and more withering satire and indeed more acute ability than are frequently to be These annual gatherings deserve the love and homage of the American people. They come to us as an inheritance. They are ours for a purpose, and they demand of each one of us that infor an intelligent execution of that purpose. It is all nonsense that anyone may vote who has reached the required age. An ability to read one's own language should go with the ballot. A full vote should invariably be had on own meeting day. To cast the ballot not only a privilege but a duty as

We have but little liking for that an who will not take the time to vote, and we still have less liking for that man who will not vote as his conscience dictates. On Monday Arlington should cast her maximum vote. Let her see that she does so.

A NO-LICENSE TOWN.

Arlington has for many years distin. guished herself as a no-license town, so that she needs to care with increasing watchfulness as the years go on that her name does not suffer from the sale of intoxicating liquors. Intemperance and drunkenness have so frequently been depicted in all its horrors that we do not propose to repeat the story, but we do urge upon our citizens to roll up the biggest kind of a majority on Monday for no-license.

INAUGURATION DAY.

March the fourth has become a redletter day in our American way of doing things at the national capital every four years. In the good old Jeffersonian days the inauguration of the president of these United States was without pomp or show, but in these later days the induction of a president into the executive chair of state is attended with much of the showy demonstration which attends royalty. It is a question if in many respects we have not swung wide from that entire simplicity which characterized the earlier days of the republic. It is evident that the second inauguration of Mr. McKinley on Monday will be had with more demonstrative acclaim than any which has preceded, and Vice-President-Elect Roosevelt will materially add to the show.

HOW FEW THEY ARE!

How few are the people who read understandingly! There is a wide differbetween skimming through a book so as to be simply able to name its author and title page, and reading it so as to make the thought of the writer one's own. You must by an inexorable law put yourself in his place, if you would take in the situation as the author took it in before you. Booth made Hamlet his own because he first entered so rtily into the life of Shakespeare, we, because he interpreted it with as it may be, we certainly sympathile ooo. Well, Boston can afford it, that intenser meaning which came from this close study of it. It is difficult to find that locality which is not burdened an added zest. with its number of superficial readers, who will talk to you by the hour of the latest book out, and yet say nothing; and all for the reason that they have read to no good purpose. All that it game of marbles is purely a scientific included in what is known as the better game. It teaches the construction of class of literature should be read with pencil in hand, copious notes should be taken and looked over and reviewed and re-reviewed at one's leisure. It isn't the quantity of our reading, but the quality, that concerns us most. We know of more than one who has been intellectu- as well as in the world of intellectual ally starved to death right within hand's and manual labor. If the literary essay reach of the best libraries, because he had not been instructed in what may be because it excells all others, why oughttermed the philosophical method of n't the boy to have two marbles to his reading. It is not so much in the number of books which one may read as it is the better game? Say what we may, in the how we may read the few which and deny it as we will, we men and are his to peruse. Make the author's thought your own, or otherwise do not claim to have read him.

YOUR SENSITVE PEOPLE.

How they will stew and fret, and make everything and everybody uncomfortable about them by assuming that some one has treated them with cold neglect, or wounded their finer feelings by an indifferent word or by no word at all These over-sensitive men and women are constantly being stepped on. They will manage somehow to receive an effront when no effront has been given. If they are not consulted upon all occasions and upon all subjects of interest to the public, then will they declare in the secrecy of their homes, if not elsewhere, that the stupid public do not appreciate their rare intelligence. And so they go fuming and fretting through the world because they are not recognized in each instance as the pronounced authorities which must be consulted or else all things are put in imminent danger of miscarrying. Why not accept the everlasting fact that no one individual is essenof life? But these sensitive representatives of humanity will persist in the egotistical assumption that they are the pivotal point upon which the world must turn, provided it is to succeed in making its revolutions. The truth is, we get out of all patience with these whining sensitive men and women. They become a nuisance. Fortunate, indeed, would it have been for them and the little world about them could they have measured themselves in early life by some sensible fellow who would heard in our annual town meetings. have, as the vulgar saying has it, 'knocked the stuffing out of them.' But the world will go on its accustomed way long after they are dead and forgoten. So there is no cause for despair.

THE BIGOT. The term "bigot," in its broader sig-nification, has come to mean that man, or rather that living being in human form, who is so intolerant of the opinion of others that he practically believes that he is right while all the world beside is wrong. So narrow-minded is he that he entertains not even the shadow of a doubt that the immediate circumference which encircles him is really the limit of all created things. The bigot is simply the italicized form of the first personal pronoun "I." So eminently on Maple street. It is always such a satisfied is he with himself that he comes to pity in a hypocritical way those who differ from him. It matters not in what department of labor he may be engaged, his work is uniformly along the lines of his own selfish being. Your self-opinionated man is a law unto himself. He is wiser than seven men who can give a reason. He knows it all, so there can be nothing for him to learn. To argue any given point with him is to throw your time away. It is absolutely impossible to convince him that he is wrong, for "you can never reason that out of the brain of another which has not first been reasoned into it." Your real bigot is one of the most annoying and provoking of all God's creation, and yet he must be endured.

How shall we treat this burlesque of the human kind? is the easiest of queries. The ready reply to be given is that we go about our work paying no heed to that microscopic life which represents the zero power in the exponential world. The bigot will likely live on for all time in this lower world of ours, and in the 'hereafter' he will most likely be saved, chiefly for the reason that he has no thing in his intellectual make-up either in amount or quality to lose. The bigot is an objective illustration of the atomic theory, and at the same time, absurd as it may seem, an illustration of God's infinite power in an infinitesimal creation.

THE GAME OF MARBLES.

The game of marbles uniformly makes its annual appearance at this season of the year, and it is widespread in this northern latitude. The first bare spot of earth in the springtime is a sufficient inducement for the boys to invest in these "ground nuts," as they have been aptly called, and play the game for all it's worth. The game has an added interest when played for "keeps." Of course it is quite the proper thing for ns to tell the children in Sunday school and elsewhere that to play marbles for "keeps" is a wicked thing to do and then on Monday morning to be early o wrote Hamlet. The elder Booth on hand in our State streets and Wall cited, as the story has it, the Lord's streets that we make take every possible ayer before that company of clergy- advantage in our big game of chance in this time at the corner of Tremont and the rise and tumble of stocks. #### BE DEFINITE.

A definite statement is always due the for an individual, so made as to be ap- bition. plied in a general way, is the height of cowardice and a meanness superlative. In no instance in our newspaper work Whenever we have had any criticism to make of John Doe or Richard Roe we have so made it that the individual in question has clearly understood that he alone was meant. It is unfair and unmanly for any newspaper man to so direct an individual shot that an entire class is to be hit thereby. That journalist who will skulk and dodge in so shooting at random that he may hit no one in particular, while he attempts to condemn everybody, should be driven out of the profession. Say what you mean, and thus show yourself a man.

We spent on Tuesday morning a pleasant half-hour in the Kindergarten school delight to visit those 50 or more children so interested in their work. And then what a cordial welcome they give you, and without the least formality whatever. Indeed, where there is heart and soul there can be no formality. The Misses Wellington and their assistants are to be congratulated on the excellent work they are doing for the little folks, and the fathers and mothers of the children are to be congratulated that that they have a school so delightful and worthy to which they can entrust their children as they first emerge from the

WHY NOT?

Why not have a smiling face and a cheery word for every man, woman and child you meet? Why go moping about, swearing that the world is misusing you? Men and women usually receive their full value from the community in which they reside. That individual is a rare exception who does not find his exact measurement among those with whom he deals. Use the world aright, then you may be sure the world will use you aright. "Curses always come home to roost." Set our own house in order, then will all things be right on the outside. The trouble is with uswe get moody and ugly, and then we vow by all that is good and holy that the whole world is askew. REVIEW OF REVIEWS .- Mrs. Na tion's saloon-wrecking crusade is occa-sion of some pertinent paragraphs in the March Review of Reviews on the sub-ject of American lawlessness, the lynchject of American lawlessness, the lynching evil, and official responsibility for public order. The editor takes the ground that lawlessness, at the present time in this country, is "a greater danger than drunkenness," and that "the law should be put in enforceable shape and then enforced, in spite of everything." On the question of Cuba's future relations with the United States the editor holds that much more time is required than the advocates of an extra session of congress have allowed forthat, in short, congressional action will not be demanded for many months to come. In Dr. Shaw's opinion it would be a mistake to try to set up the new Cuban government before 1903. Mr. W. T. Stead contributes a clever and well-informed character sketch of King Edward VII.

HERDERS OF THE WEST.

How the Riotous Cowboy Compares With the Lonely Sheep Herder.

"In the character of the men who care for the berds and flocks can be found an interesting subject for study," says Captain J. H. McClintock in Ainslee's. "The cowboy, if he be the genuine article, is a man who daily does feats on the range that would win applause at a wild west show. In his chase after the fleet, unbranded yearling he is compelled to ride at headlong speed over country that a fox hunter would consider sure death. Danger confronts him in varied form, and no man can be an efficient cow puncher who hasn't in him the spirit of recklessness.

"The writer once witnessed a stampedo of wild cattle at midnight. A great herd was being held in a canyon of the Mazarzal mountains. The night was as dark as it is possible for night to be. A coyote's bark started the nervous animals to their feet, and they were off. The two riding guards on watch howled for help. Their sleeping comrades were up in a twinkling. Each seized a horse at the picket line and mounted without saddle stopping only to twist a loop of his riata about the pony's nose. Barely a dozen seconds had passed before the campfire was deserted. The cowboys were plunging in the dark after the fleeing cattle, through a wild, rocky, unknown district filled with mesquite and cactus, cut up by danger-ous arroyos and canyons. By noon of the succeeding day the drive was resumed. A half dozen steers had been left behind, lamed or dead in the gulches, while a few of the horses in the 'wrangler's bunch' in the lead were skinned and limping. But the cowboys, their clothing in rags from the thorny midnight ride, merely joked on their mutual appearance and solaced their weariness with tobacco and with endless song.

"As a rule the cowboy is an American. In the plateau region he may hail from anywhere, but usually comes either from California or from Texas. But they all fraternize, making issue only over the liking of the Californian for a saddle with a 'single barreled rig,' which is a saddle with a single girth. The Texan despises anything but a double cinched saddle, though usually he does not tighten the second girth.

"The sheep herder has a distinctly lower social place. As a rule, he is a foreigner, the few Americans employed being in positions of unusual trust. Most of the herders appear to be Mexicans or Frenchmen. It is said that Basques are the best and most careful shepherds They come from northern Spain, many of them especially for this employment. even higher than the pay of cowboys or farmhands, but the nervous American cannot stand the life. The everlasting 'baa' drives him mad. He cannot endure the monotony and the necessary separation from humanity, with only a dog for company for months at a stretch. And the diet, mainly tea and mutton, is too simple for his luxurious palate.

"It is a fact that sheep herding furnishes a greater number of inmates for western insane asylums than does any other occupation. The shepherd, like the cowboy, is gradually assimilated to his surroundings and naturally acquires much of the nature of his charges. To his credit it must be said that he is rarely unfaithful to the interests of his flock and its owner. There is nothing poetical about him, but he will risk his life for the safety of a lamb and will doggedly search all night if there be a stray. He is a much quieter fellow than the cowboy, even in his cups, when the wool has been clipped and the hands are in town for a little fling. He has no wild yearning for idly shooting holes in the firmament. He is happiest on a sunny hill side, lying at ease where he may over-look his flock and hear the ceaseless voicing of its lamentation."

Authorship by Proxy. .

There is an amusing story of a woman of title who found it difficult to understand journalistic methods when she first encountered them. The sister of a well known and eccentric Scotch peer was traveling in Japan and the far east when she received a cablegram from a great metropolitan daily, "Would you accept for series travel articles?" The lady was pleased and replied by cable that she would "send copy" in a fort-night. She was, therefore, annoyed when the paper withdrew from its offer, cabling to her "No need to send copy."

Dignified silence seemed the only way to treat such unbusinesslike methods. Many weeks later, returning, she found a parcel of newspapers and read with some astonishment several spirited and gossipy articles on the far east written. was announced, by herself. Had not a letter inclosing a handsome check accompanied the parcel there might have been a considerable row. As it is, the lady accepts gracefully the compliments of friends upon her literary style.—Sat-urday Evening Post.

Paid In His Own Coin.

An English paper, Modern Society, is responsible for this bit of "Washington gossip:" "A good story is told of an at-tache of the Belgian legation who rather resented being sent to Washington after a diplomatic experience in London and who superciliously announced on arriving there that he would speak only French, as he did not wish, having learned his English in London, to corrupt it in America. At a reception a deep impression was made upon him by a lovely girl, and he at once asked to be pre-sented. To a friend who made known his request the young woman replied: 'Quite impossible. I learned my French in Paris, and I cannot corrupt it by talk-ing with a Belgian."

street are in Atlantic City. On Monday evening a hearing was had in behalf of the Lexington & Boston street railway for a double track from the present terminus of the road at the heights to the new carbouse. E. S. Farmer, chairman of the board of selectmen, presided. President Horace E. Parker and Supt. William H. Greene of the Lexington & Boston company spoke in favor of their petition. M. S. Drew, J. Q. Cate and A. J. McDonald of the heights section opposed the petition. The board took the matter under consideration.

Rev. S. C. Bushnell exchanged last Sunday with Rev. John G. Taylor of the heights.

Rey. S. C. Bushnell preached in the Prospect hill Congregational church in Somerville on Sunday evening for Rev. E. S. Tead, who is Porto Rico.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Bullard and party returned on Wednesday from their summer home, Kinderheim, at the foot of Black mountain, where they put in a week of delightful winter pastime. They found the snow among the Sandwich mountains only of moderate depth, and the clear, crisp mountain air invigorating. They kept comfortably warm during the evenings with their big fireplace all ablaze and the big stove going at full heat. During the daytime the party were out on their

Mr. Joshua G. Dodge met with a painful though not serious accident at his home on Russell street on Monday afternoon. As he was descending his stairway he slipped and fell over the three last steps and broke his collar bone and bruised his left hip and arm. We called at his house on Tuesday and was glad to learn that his injuries are not serious, and that he is very comfortable. Mr. Dodge is one of our most welcome visienjoy his presence.

Nomination papers for two candidates against the regular nominations made by the caucus have been filled and sent into the proper authorities. Walter W. Conant is to run for selectman against E. S. Farmer, and Henry D. Dodge to to run for park commissioner against William A. Muller, the regular nominee. Warren A. Peirce is to run for tree warden. It will be asked again that a portion of Mt. Pleasant cemetery be set apart for the Roman Catholics.

A call on Mr. W. G. Kimball, the builder and contractor, found him busy at his work. Mr. Kimball is well up in the line of modern architecture, and so naturally enough he is employed the year through. Mr. Kimball is another of those men whom it is pleasant to meet.

We spent a pleasant half-hour the other day in the Cutter school. Miss Chaplin, the able and efficient principal, has an excellent corps of assistants, so that the Cutter school is in a condition which merits the confidence of the public. We were in Miss Brady's room for quite a little while, and much enjoyed the manifest life and spirit of her pupils. The Cutter school well deserves the new building which it is soon to occupy.

Miss, Edith E. Rowe, daughter of Matthew Rowe, 977 Mass. avenue, gave a pleasant reception to her cousin, Mr. Michael Kirby of Cambridge on Tuesday evening at her home. Mr. Kirby is about to assume a responsible position in Washington, D. C. Among those present were Ed Stokes, Wm. Brady, James Kirby, Frank Breen, Twin Sullivan, Bertha Kirby, all of Cambridge. Nothing pleases us more than to recognize a thoroughly live man when we meet him, and all this we recognize in Mr. Dyer, the manager of the newsroom in the Post office building. Mr. Dyer is fully abreast with everything in the news world, and he is never "left" in having the latest on his news-stand. Prompt and exact in the delivery of the dailies, Arlington is being served right up to date.

Two meetings in the interest of nolicense will be held in Arlington tomorrow evening. The five Protestant churches of the center will unite in a meeting in the Town hall at 7.30 p. m. Addresses will be made by Rev. Harry Fay Fister, Rev. Frederic Gill and Rev. James Yeames. Music by a chorus under the direction of Mr. Stephen Wood. The other meeting will be held at the heights, at 7 p. m., in the Park avenue church, the Baptist and Congregational churches uniting.

In a walk up Mass. avenue on Thursday morning, we ran in upon Mr. Matthew Rowe at his place of business. It always does one good to meet Mr. Rowe, for he has a cordial greeting for everybody. Mr. Rowe has long been a business man here in Arlington, and he has rightfully distinguished himself for giving dollar for dollar in his trade. In reply to a query if he was going to witness the second inauguration of McKinley on Monday, he said he thought not, but added if it was Bryan who was to be inaugurated he thought he might pack his gripsack and be off for Washington. Mr. Rowe is a Jeffersonian democrat to the backbone.

Mr. W. H. Nolan of the Boston Globe can guess what he doesn't know, and you may be sure that he knows what is what. While perusing the columns of his favorite journal his eye fell upon an intricate puzzle, for the solving or guessing of which a goodsized check was offered. Mr. Nolan at once set his wits to work, and so sent on his best guess to Editor Hearst. On Wednesday Mr. Nolan received the promised check, for he alone of the 200,000 readers of the Journal was right in his guess. How to Apply Stain.

The best way to apply stain and bring out the grain of the wood is to put it on quite thick and then rub it off with a linen or cotton rag, and it is absolutely necessary that the wood should be in its natural condition, without paint or transit. By sending a special order to varnish. By sending a special order to the manufacturers it is easy to get sets of furniture without either, but if it is an old piece that is to be renovated it must be thoroughly scraped. After staining a coat of hard oil finish may be applied as a filler, and then after it is dry it should be rubbed all over with the prepared beeswax that comes in cans for floors and then rubbed with a flannel cloth until it is quite shiny and bright. After the wax is rubbed on it should be allowed to harden before polishing it.

Charm of Simplicity.

There is a great charm in simplicity. Real elegance is ever for the very rich and consequently for the very few. Cleanliness and simplicity must constitute the elegance of the common people, the great majority.

Use Turpentine When Scrubbing. Add a little turpentine to the water with which the floor is scrubbed. It will take away the close smell and make the room delightfully fresh.

"THE SILENCES OF GOD."

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., of New

Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., of New York, preached in Appleton chapel, Sunday night. He said in part:

'Christ was the founder of Christianity but not of religion, for religion is the life of God in the soul of man. Religion is manifested intellectually by creed, emotionally by ritual, and systematically by organization. Christ gave none of these. Men seek in vain for a system of thought formulated in his teachings. of thought formulated in his teachings. He is not the author of a system of theology. His purpose was to inspire with life, which is more important than any creed. Christ's method is to make us creed. Christ's method is to make us think for ourselves. Universities have borrowed their methods from this sys-

Christ formulated no ritual. He did not Christ formulated no ritual. He did not teach the Lord's prayer as an arbitraryform, but as an expression of the soul's need to God. Christ founded no religious organization, although this, I admit, is debatable ground. He appointed disciples to assist him. He did not tell how to organize, but he inspired men with the love of God that would lead them to organize. There were three means by organize. There were three means by which Christ inspired life and God mani-fested himself through Christ and through man. #### MAGAZINES.

THE WORLD'S WORK.—The World's Work for March touches every continent, has something new to say on practically every general topic of interest, sketches the men who are doing some of the great things, in fact, retails everything that the world has done well during the past month. The magazine lives up to its name in its variety, and then vivifies the workaday world with keen, progressive, American spirit. The list of contents is Rule of the English-Speaking Folk, (the race that rules on every continent but one) as viewed at the close of the Victorian era; a strikingly fine story of the work of old St. George's Parish, New York, by Mr. Jacob Riis; intimately personal sketches of General DeWet, Alfred Harmsworth, and the late Philip Armour; two articles on the necessity of honesty in politics and business (that honesty in politics and business (that honesty is, if nothing else, "the best policy") and an optimistic belief in the world's growing frankness and truth; an answer to "Can I Make a Farm Pay" which is as interesting as it is authoritative; handsomely illustrated articles, one concerned with the beautifying of rail-way stations, another with the improvement of our national capital.

outing.—Outing for March is a winter number and draws upon three continents for its seasonable sports. "Winter in His City Home." by Leon Vandervort; is Quebec in high revelry sleighing, snow shoeing and tobogganing, and is fully illustrated. "Norway's National Sport." by Tan W. Schreiner, a citizen of Christiania, shows a remarkable series of photographs of this great sport, taken especially for Outing. "Carrying the Mail Over the Andes on Skis," by Johannes Hroff Wisby, is a story of peril and adventure in the mountains of South America. "European Figure Skating," by George Wood (of Oxford), takes the reader to the Swiss Alps, where the experts meet in competition; and "Birds at Short Range," by Leander S. Keyser, is the record of what a thoughtful naturalist learned who fed the wild birds through the snowy scasch. Winter of a more genial kind afforded "Louisiana Bayou and Marsh Shooting." by Alexander Kidd; "Goose Shooting on the Gulf Coast," by E. Hough; and "Diving for Turtles Off the Florida Keys." by Charles F. Holder. Sportsmen will be edified by Vice-President Elect Theodore Roosevelt's "The Need of Trained Observation," which gives practical advice on what to see and how to see it when afield. "The Caribou and Its Home," by Andrew J. Stone, covers the whole range of this valuable deer.

McCLURE'S.—The March issue of McCLURE'S.—The March issue of McClure's Magazine is one of notable value, a value at once timely and permanent. The leading feature is a character study of Edward VII., written by the man in America most competent for the task, George W. Smalley, the correspondent of the London Times. Accompanying the article are pictures which form a series of portraits of the new sovereign from earliest youth to the present. Following this appreciation of the king, there is a collection of pictures of Queen Victoria. These are thirty in number, reproductions of photographs and paintings, and they are a complete pictorial souvenir of the monarch. A descriptive text accompanies them. Theodore Roosevelt, vice-president elect, contributes an article of great interest to this number, in which he describes clearly the personalities of some, who have labored with success in New York city for "Reform Through Social Work." An article of particular historical value, as well as of vivid interest, is contributed by Ids M. Tarbell. This is entitled "The Disbanding of the Union Army." and in it is adequately told for the first time the story of an event unique in history, how the federal government returned its army of a million men from the camps of war to the fields of peace.

THE BACHELOR IN THE WOOD.

Beauty I trod, who trod in bridal woods A milky way of fushed spring beauties, starred With pleiads of all golden adder tongue; How could that blossomed fire be else than this, The height of a woman's ankle in the wood?

Passion I breathed, who found all air a harp To passionate brown thrushes shaken and thrilled pauses in that magic minstrelsy Filled with a music's echo of cardinals; How could that warbled fire be else than this The height of a woman's lips within the wood?

But love, but love, how shall I find it here, Oh, April, Aphrodite, here alone? Those send the bees to find their sister flowers, These sing unto their mates; but, love, my love, Is it where the hawk hangs on the moving cloud The height of a woman's heart above the wood?

—Joseph Russell Taylor in Atlantic.

HE SHAVED GENERAL MILES.

It Was Bill's First Appearance In the Role of Barber.

During the autumn of 1896 Major General Miles and a party of Washington friends arranged for a bear hunt in the mountains of New Mexico. They arrived at Magdalena in a special car and were met at the station by Captain Slo-cum with Troop E of the Seventh United States cavalry, detailed to act as escort to the party. Proceeding at once to the Hoffman ranch, about 50 miles westward, they pitched camp and next day started in to bunt bears.

Shortly after they left Magdalena a ranchman rode into town with the startling intelligence that he had met Bill Parks, an old resident, out on the mountains. Bill told him that he had shot and killed a prominent citizen of Magdalena and was trying to elude a posse sent in pursuit of him; also that the town had been visited by a lot of little men who overturned all the buildings. As the man reported killed was alive and the buildings were still on solid foundations. the conclusion reached was that Bill had soon organized and on Bill's trail. On the second day's hunt his hiding place was discovered. He protested against returning to Magdalena, fearing a lynching, as the man he imagined he had killed was very popular. However, after a long parley and with the assurance that he would be protected, he consented to return. The posse and Bill reached Magdalena four days prior to the return of the bear hunters. Bill was confined in a room for two days, and, having greatly improved, was then liberated. The day following his release Bill walked into the Eclipse saloon, and in a corner saw an old, unused barber chair. Remarking that he knew a thing or two about "barbering," he begged the proprietor to give him the chair and allow him to begin business as a barber. The saloon keeper, wishing to humor him and feeling satisfied that no one would risk his neck in Bill's care, gave his consent. Bill fixed up the old chair, sharpened a few rusty razors, secured a towel or two and was ready for the rush to begin. The rush came not. but Bill kept on waiting and was presently rewarded.

General Miles and his party returned from what had been a successful bear hunt and took up their quarters in the special car. The general, being very much in need of a shave, inquired of a loiterer if there was a barber shop in town. The loiterer, who was a wag, pointed out Bill's place, whereupon the general remarked that he would go there in a few minutes. The news spread quickly over town that Bill was going to shave the famous General Miles. Bill selected his razor, got out a clean towel and awaited (he arrival. It was evident to onlookers that he was growing nervous. When the general arrived at the saloon, standing room was at a premium. the chair, where Bill received him with a courtly bow. When the operation began, there was a full house. Those not close enough to see the performance were re-warded by hearing the scrape, scrape of the dull razor as it was drawn across the victim's face. General Miles took his medicine without a murmur and bravely closed his eyes. This encouraged Bill, who thought the razor was working so smoothly that his customer had gone to sleep. He regained his nerve and at the end of ten minutes the ordeal was at an end. The general, looking much relieved, end. The general, looking much relieved, handed Bill a quarter and departed. Bill's face beamed with pride while congratulations poured in from all sides.

The next morning Bill put up this sign over his mirror, "General shaving, 25 cents." Bill's fame soon spread throughout the surrounding country and his chair was besieged by customers who wanted to be shaved by the man who shaved General Miles.—New York Sun.

FINISHED THE BEAR.

A MEAL THAT WAS A LITTLE BIT TOO HOT FOR HEALTH.

An Engineer's Narrative of His Lively Adventure With a Certain Mrs.

Bruin In the Early Railroading Days In Pennsylvania, The fat engineer had been trying to make himself heard for some time and finally succeeded in getting the attention of the members of the roundhouse stove committee. "Yes, yes," he said, "Pennsylvania used to be a wild state in the days when I did my first throttle pulling on the Royal Blue line, and many were the hair raising experiences we had. Bears? they were thicker than dead flies on sticky fly paper. They were a little shy when the road first went through, but after the novelty wore off they got so they enjoyed a ride on a freight train as much as any hobo living, and it was no uncommon sight to see a bear sitting on the edge of a box car, letting his legs dangle over the edge, just like a real brakeman. Yes, yes. That's a fact. "In about the wildest part of the country we ran through there was a passing siding which was called Haskin's Switch. This was a regular hanging out place for the bears. One day an old female bear was giving her cub a boost to get him up on a flat car for a little outing when he slipped and fell under the cruel wheels, his young life being crushed out instantly. The old mother bear took it real hard and did some ugly growling as she passed by the engine.

"The incident faded from my mind very soon. A couple of days after that we came along to Haskin's and had to take the siding for a passenger train. The boys of the crew and my fireman thought they would go up in the woods about a quarter of a mile and get some good spring water, as we had a few minutes to wait before the first class train came along. They left me all alone with "The running gear of the engine on the left hand side, forward under the boiler, had been working badly, so I thought I'd look things over. I took my long necked oil can and, lighting my torch, got off the engine and went forward to look over the troublesome gear. I found that a link hanger needed attention, necessitating my getting down flat on my belly under the engine with legs projecting over the rails. I had been at work in this position for some minutes when I felt a strong tugging at my left trouser leg.

"'It's the boys back from the spring.' I thought to myself, 'and they're trying to get gay with me. I'll just pay no attention to them whatever.' "I kept right on at my chore, but the boys kept right on fooling with my legs. Finally my temper got the better of me and I shouted angrily:

"'Harry, by jiminetty, if that's you, I'll come out there and kick you so hard that you won't be able to sit down for a week.' Harry was my fireman's name.
"The only answer I got was a low growl. I will admit that I got frightened, although such a thing is unusual with Nevertheiess having finished my work, I began to back out from under the engine, keeping my torch and oil can in my hands.

"Well, you could have knocked me over with a feather, for when I got out so's I could see, the first thing my eyes at on was that old she bear, sitting on her haunches waiting for me to come out. She was ugly, too, and growling. look on her face seemed to say: 'You are the cause of the death of my offspring. If you'd been more careful, it wouldn't have happened. I'm here to settle with

'When I got out, she made several movements toward me, but I kept her at a comfortable distance by waving my torch in her face. She was getting bolder all the while, however, and I knew I vould have to devi on the engine, as I didn't want to try as argument in close quarters with her, because a bear in as ugly a mood as she was is not a thing to be sneezed at.

"So I set my wits to work. Glancing around I saw that I was nearer to the pilot of the engine than I was to the step on the side of the tank, and if I could reach the pilot before the bear did I could get to the cab via the running board along the side of the boiler and laugh at Mrs. Bear.

"I decided to try for it, and, making a feint lunge at my animal friend with the torch to get her farther from me, I dusted for the pilot. I reached it before she did, but just as I was drawing my leg up the bear grabbed it with both her fore paws. I tried to break away from her hold, but it was useless. Turning, I saw her jaws wide open within easy reach of my arm, and something superhuman seemed to tell me what to do. I stuck the torch in her wide open mouth. With the other hand I brought my oil can into play and poured the coal oil from the can on the lighted torch in the bear's wide open mouth. The effect was very disastrous for the bear. The inflammable oil took fire going down her throat, and, ex-ploding, almost blew her head off, killing

"The boys got back shortly after that, but they wouldn't believe my story until I showed them the bear's carcass."—New York Sun.

Phillips Brooks as a Nurse.

Dr. Brooks was calling on some of his poorer parishioners one day and found one woman looking very tired and mis-erable, with several little children and one small baby under her care. He told her she ought to go out and take a walk with the older children, the day being a beautiful one. She replied that she had no one with whom she could leave the baby. "Leave it with me," answered Dr. Brooks. And he remained with the baby until the woman returned, brighter and better for the breath of fresh air she had obtained.-Ladies' Home Journal.
